Caribbean Crew Is Saved in Storm on North Brown Banks

LIVERPOOL, N. C. Jan. 17.—With one member of the crew dead from exposure and the others being helpless in their bunks from the cold, the yawl rigged French schooner Quo Vadis was picked up off Brown's banks by the Gloucester schooner Catharine and towed into this port.

The Quo Vadis was bound from Martinique for St. Pierre, Mich., with salt. The crew, accustomed to the tropic heat of the Caribbean sea, were not prepared for the frigid gales of the north. For days the French schooner was buffeted by storms, and the crew suffered from frost bites. One young seaman, Charles Luce, aged 17 years, died.

When the Gloucesterman sighted the Quo Vadis she was wallowing in the trough of the sea, with all her sails down. Capt. McLeod, of the Catharine, at once sent some dorymen aboard and they found the Caribbean sailors huddled together in their bunks, without any means of keeping warm. They gave up four days ago all hope of being rescued.

The Whisper That Comes in the Night

The Glorious Knowledge Women Gain When a Wonderful Thought Steals Over Them.

Happiness in its most thrilling degree comes to woman with the thought of possessing a baby.

Every woman in the joy of coming motherhood should prepare her system for the unusual strain. Three generations have found the tried and reliable preparation, Mother's Friend, of the greatest help at such a time. By its daily use throughout the period, the skin of the abdomen is made soft and elastic, expanding muscles relax easily when baby arrives, and pain at the crisis is in this way avoided.

The inflammation of breast glands is soothed.

Obtain from your druggist by all means, this great preparation which science has offered for so many years to expectant mothers.

Write the Bradford Regulator Company, Dept. D, Lamar Building, Atlanta, Georgia, for their helpful and interesting Motherhood Book, and begin the use of Mother's Friend. It is for everyone, and is absolutely safe and wonderfully effective.

Remember, there is nothing to take the place of MOTHER'S FRIEND.

FREEDOM OF SEAS AS VIEWED BY BRITISH

The Van Couver, B. C. World has this to say editorially about freedom of the seas.

"Germany, blockaded by the British navy, sought all through the war to get supplies in neutral ships through neutral ports.

"She sought to import, and did import, from the United States through Semtinavia or Holland foodstuffs and metals.

"The basis on which the British blockade against Germany operated is to be found in the declaration of Paris, 1855, and the declaration of London, 1909.

"The first, in general, provided that neutral flags covered enemy merchandise except contraband of war and that neutral merchandise could not be seized even under the enemy flag.

"The second, which was added in 1909, provided that the first could be confiscated because consigned direct or not. The second could be seized only if going direct to an enemy port for the use of the armed forces or agents of the belligerent government.

"This meant that during the war foodstuffs and barbed wire, for example, could have been sent out to Germany via Rotterdam if only they were carried by neutral ships.

"Great Britain never ratified the declaration of London. She added during the war, as she had a right to do, foodstuffs and other supplies to the list of absolute contraband, and she maintained that their ultimate destination, whether sent to neutral addresses or not, was what counted in the matter of seizure.

"It was against this action of Britain that the United States and other neutrals protested early in the war. In consequence of these protests the British blockade of Germany, as Vicecount Grey pointed out, was much less effective than it otherwise would have been. However, when the United States entered the war it co-operated in carrying out the British practice.

"Those who are not discussing the 'freedom of the seas' do not say how they mean the British practice ought to be modified. Until their views are able."

Soviet Russia to Become Barbarous Declares Officer

LONDON, Jan. 17.—"Russia," that is soviet Russia, will revert to absolute barbarism within three years if assistance is not offered from the outside," says a British officer who recently escaped from Russia. To the correspondent of the Associated Press he added:

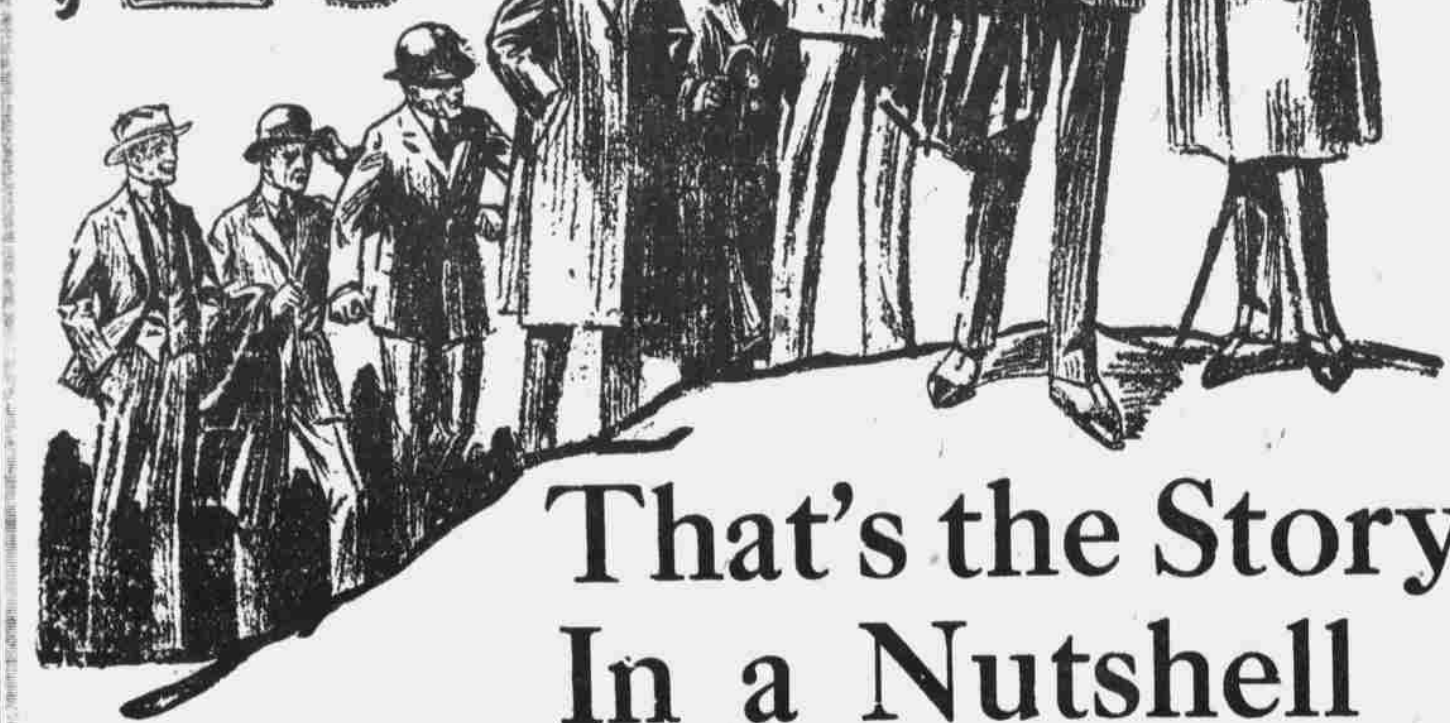

"Men and women of the better classes who have lived through the first year of Bolshevism are donning peasant garb in self-defense and dropping into the dull, monotonous village life. There's nothing else for them to do. Russia will soon be as primitive as Congo.

"It is hopeless to expect leadership in Russia which will save the country from reversion to mediocrity. The Bolsheviki leaders are not strong. Opposition leaders are so weak that Lenin and his associates seem strong by comparison. They are merely better organized than any other group."

MOVIE STAR WEDS CANADIAN HERO AFTER BRIEF LOVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Standing on the parapet of a trench, the last surviving man of his party, with machine gun bullets dropping about him, a Canadian field artilleryman, responsible for the success of the Canadian Corps in the battle of the Somme on Nov. 20, 1916, and for that memorable occasion, was decorated by King George with the Military Cross. Yet only a few days ago when he came to asking a beautiful young lady to be his bride, the gallant Canadian failed.

The signing of the armistice and the victory had, however, seemingly spurred the lieutenant to further efforts, for on the night of the ball, Miss June Elvidge, a well-known moving picture star, looked so radiantly beautiful that the lieutenant, summoned up all his courage and asked her to be his bride, and within 48 hours Miss Elvidge had changed her name to Mrs. Badgely.

He decided to go to New York for the license. He jumped into Miss Elvidge's car and rushed to the ferry and missed the boat at 2:15. The well-known moving picture star, however, was not to be deterred.

He phoned the license clerk to wait and after the license was obtained they had time to buy a ring before the stores closed. Then came the rushing about in the taxi to the apartment of Miss Elvidge, where they finally got Judge Peter Larson to perform the ceremony at 11:15.

Badgely's apartment, but were married.

Lieut. Badgely enlisted in August, 1914, and fought in practically every important battle of the war, among them Neu-Chapelle, Hill 60, Thiepval and a dozen others. Later he was wounded and returned to Canada and then took charge of the photographic section of the British bureau of information in New York.

Miss June Elvidge is 25 years of age and decided to go on the stage about four years ago. She was featured in "The Passing Show of 1914" where she attracted the attention of movie magnates and later signed with the World Film Corporation in 1915. She first played heavy roles in support of Alice Brady, but soon co-starred with Charles Hall-Charles and this year she is the world's best known star.

At present June is busy trying to get the "flu," but her lieutenant husband is fighting valiantly to see that she doesn't.
